AVM 204 - Corporate Aviation Management
Fall 2011 Open Entry/Open Exit

The course provides an overview of the management and operation of an executive aviation business or corporate flight department for on-demand air travel. Students will be introduced to topics that include the value of using on-demand air travel, business organization, government regulation, aircraft and equipment evaluation, maintenance, flight operations, administration, and fiscal considerations.

In this course, you will:

- Learn the various types of on-demand travel.
- Learn how to create a business plan for a corporate Aviation Department.
- Explore career opportunities in corporate/executive aviation.
- Learn the history and present trends in corporate and executive aviation.
- Learn how corporate and executive aviation can be more efficient than a scheduled airline.
- Learn the vigorous regulations a flight operation must comply with.
- Learn about the multiple entities that make up a flight department.
- Learn best management practices for this mode of transportation.

Have you ever wondered how people afford to fly on private jets?
